IV. GOVERNMENT SECURITIES ON ISSUE.

Note.—Public Securities on Issue, as set out in Tables Nos. 11 and 12, may not be aggregated without adjustment to indicate what is sometimes described as "public debt" or "net public debt".

For example, these tables do not include "public" securities or other forms of indebtedness redeemable by semi-governmental or local authorities, or the debt of other bodies guaranteed by governments. Again, there are forms of debt not evidenced by the issue of securities.

Some of the securities included in these tables are held by the Governments themselves. For example, a State Government may hold temporarily—or even for long periods—securities issued by the Commonwealth. The Commonwealth itself, through such institutions as the National Debt Commission, or through the Trust Funds, may largely finance its debts either directly by issue or on behalf of the States, the latter being liable to assessments later directly to the Commonwealth, the proceeds of which are relevant to the States in exchange for a domestic security. From the point of view of the aggregate net debt of the Commonwealth and the States, it would thus involve duplication if the sum of the securities on issue were regarded as representing the "net public debt".

Thus "securities on issue" is a clear-cut legal and financial concept which can be stated with precision. "Net public debt" is a concept which admits of many interpretations, and the following tables do not purport to record it. Analyses of changes in the over-all indebtedness of public authorities are given in the White Paper on National Income.
